With Joyce Riley and Dave vonKleist

P.O. Box 85, Versailles, MO 65084, (573) 378-6049, (573) 378-5998FAX

Dave vonKleist has spent his career in the broadcast industry as a professional TV/radio announcer and as a professional vocalist for commercials and independent recording projects. He was staff announcer at WTNH-ch8, New Haven, CT (ABC affiliate) 1990-1995, and at WFSB-ch3, Hartford, CT (CBS affiliate) 1995-1996. He also hosted the "Dave Riddell" show, a three-hour afternoon drive time talk show at WATR AM-1320, Waterbury, Connecticut.

Mr. vonKleist is an accomplished musician, vocalist, songwriter and performer of over thirty years. His albums "Will Someone Listen" and "Music to Die For", contain significant songs dedicated to the issues of the day, such as: "Where are the Voices that Care?" the national Gulf War veterans song, and "The Ballad of Michael New" which was dedicated to the Michael New Defense Fund and "OK Can You See?" which questions the official story of the Oklahoma City attack. www.gulfwarvets.com/daves.htm

He is the producer of the documentary "911 In Plane Site", a compilation of network footage that has created world-wide controversy.

Other accomplishments are writing, directing and editing the comedy television show "Spotlight Tonight". Voted "Best Show" and "Best Directed" show, Laurel Cable Awards, 1984, syndicated to 110 stations nationwide.

He and his wife Joyce Riley vonKleist presently co-host "The Power Hour", a radio talk show, and devote most of their time to obtaining assistance for sick Gulf War veterans through the American Gulf War Veterans Association in Versailles, Missouri.
